Welcome to Engineering College Life: A Journey of Growth and Adventure

Brace yourself for four years packed with over a hundred exams, endless assignments, and burning the midnight oil. But amidst the chaos, there is room for unforgettable experiences like fest madness, intense competitions, vibrant sports and cultural activities and more. From startup dreams to coveted placements, your journey will be fueled by passion and perseverance.

First Year:

In your first semester, with classes running from 8 am to 1 pm, you'll have most of the day free to explore. This is a time of new experiences—making new friends, discovering new places, new routines. From exploring campus hotspots to finding favorite hangout spots, this semester is filled with excitement and the thrill of discovering your place in college life.

The second semester brings a touch of familiarity. You'll delve deeper into college life and uncover all its hidden intricacies. From making connections with seniors to discovering the campus "hacks, this semester is about fully immersing yourself in the college experience. Even semesters mean fests and competitions, making the Sem exhilarating and memorable.

Second Year:

As you step into the third semester, classes extend until 4 pm, introducing you to branch-specific subjects. It's challenging, but this is where your engineering journey truly takes shape. Engage in assignments, projects, and start exploring career paths on LinkedIn and career sites.

In the fourth semester, with 4 pm classes now routine. You'll notice peers venturing into exciting ventures, motivating you to step up. This is when you'll begin thinking about startups, further studies, opportunities abroad. During holidays, you'll build your resume take on internships to and gain real-world experience. It's a semester of growth and decisions shaping your future.

Third Year:

The fifth semester mirrors the seriousness of your high school years, though less hectic. Thoughts of placements, competitive exams, job prospects, and skills development are at the forefront. It's a pivotal time in your academic journey.

As you progress to the sixth semester, will have college round the week with placement training on weekends. A few weeks of intense college days lead to rewarding outcomes. This semester marks a culmination of your efforts, getting you ready to transition into the professional world after graduation.
